

Introduction

Increasing numbers of people in both developed and Low- and Middle-Income Countries (LMICs) are choosing to use Powered Two Wheelers (PTW). To secure safe and sustainable use of this low-polluting and low-congesting mode of personal mobility, transport planning policies need to integrate PTW-use and recognise the benefits that PTWs make in society, business and emergency transport.

According to the Global Status Reports by the WHO, the proportion of PTW user fatalities increased from 23% to 28% of all traffic fatalities globally between 2013 and 2016. Urgent action is needed to reverse this trend. Integrating PTW Safety policy requires immediate attention at all levels: international, regional, national, and local.

Goal and Approach of the Side Event

The goal of the Side Event is to translate the problems and ideas into actions involving the upcoming 3rd Global Ministerial Conference on Road Safety, the relevant forums, groups and stakeholders.

After an introduction, a roundtable discussion is held with global institutional experts, governments, industry, user organisations, road safety experts and other key stakeholders, moderated by Professor Fred Wegman.
